COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

We expect to have some asphalt to apply to some of the Town Streets Friday and Saturday of this week also the early part of next week.

Cars parked on Main, Church and Broad Streets will present quite a problem to us, as well as to the car owners. We will very much appreciate as little parking on the streets as possible during this time.

Quite a bit of parking space not usually used, on private property, will be allowed for the first two days of next week, May 23 and 24.

The driveway between Dr. Tibbets' and Mrs. Bennett's residences. Each side of the Bethel Appliance Co. buildings. Please leave one lane clear on each side of this building. Thank you.

Week of Rural Mail Box Improvement

The week of May 16 has been designated by the Post Office Department as Rural Mail Box Improvement Week and patrons and carriers are urged to see that their boxes meet the required standard. The unsightly appearance of many boxes has caused the department much concern and for the third year Postmaster General Summerfield is asking this period of co-operation toward conformity with the simple requirements.

Requirements: Mail box authorized by Post Office Department. Must be securely attached to upright sturdy post.

Must be on right side of road as carrier travels. Box and support should be painted white with owner's name neatly printed on side carrier approaches or on strip above box.

Bottom of box should be 42 inches above the ground and on an arm extending from the post. The department suggests that rule in the approach to the mail box should be filled, and they state that the carrier is not required to leave his vehicle to serve the box.

It is also suggested that nearby area be kept clean and where possible small flowering plants be set out to beautify the location. It is believed that where mail boxes are improved the mail service is likewise improved.

The Life You Save

It is only natural that people should be appreciative of the advances made by science in recent times. It seems that progress in "automation" is viewed with opposite emotions by industry and labor, while all welcome any change in medicine or education for instance, which gives promise of improvement.

In the opinion of some old-timers who would cling to the middle of a wide road some sense is found in the reported remarks of the incoming president of the American Medical Association. We quote: "Sometimes, I can't see why we get so hysterical over polio. . . . More children are killed by automobiles in a month than are killed by polio in a year. . . . Perhaps it's time to get hysterical over traffic deaths."

We feel that we have all due respect for the real progress achieved by the hard-working, sincere members of the medical research profession. The public in general has a real interest in all this as it is financed to a considerable extent by contributions from the common people. The remarks of the doctor are well worth heeding. The problem of traffic deaths will not yield to an inoculation. Laws have never succeeded in inducing habits of common sense or promoting an increase of good judgment. The yearly conclusions of insurance companies or the pleas of our police authorities have little effect as yet.

The drinking driver and the fast driver, however safe they may be in their own estimation, have been the cause of a great many needless deaths and much suffering. In fact the safe fast driver is one for whom we have no sympathy. We have known too many times, by their own statements, of the accidents and near accidents for which "they were not at fault." No, they try to make us understand that the blame lays with the other fellow. Many of us, including confused helpless little children, have no way of predicting the results of the twisted mind of the habitual fast driver.

"Perhaps it's time to get hysterical over traffic deaths!"

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual - National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Just about everyone is in favor of a strong American merchant marine. But a great many people are not familiar with the problems involved in maintaining it. So an explanation is in order of why Congressional approval of President Eisenhower's request for $115,000,000 in ship operating subsidies for the 1955 fiscal year is needed.

That explanation has been offered, in simple yet comprehensive form, by the Committee of American Steamship Lines.

To begin with, these subsidies are actually "differential payments." They are designed to help offset the enormous advantage that foreign merchant mariners, with which our ship operators must compete, have in the all-important matter of operating costs. U. S. Maritime Administration figures show that, in a recent year, it cost $29,000 a month to operate a typical cargo ship under our standards. By contrast, the same ship could be operated for $1,700 a month under British standards, and $1,400 under Japanese standards. Thus, American costs are nearly five times as great. One of the principal reasons for this difference, incidentally, is found in our seamen's wages, working conditions, and other benefits.

The $115,000,000 requested for 1955 is lower than the 1953 figure, which was $123,000,000. Even so, both years represent a substantial increase over appropriations made before and since the end of World War II. The reason for this increase are two-fold. First of all, there is a backlog of unpaid subsidy obligations to the steamship companies totaling about $120,000,000, some of them going back seven years. The plan is to gradually catch up on these, so a part of the requested appropriation would go for prior year commitments. Second, ship operating costs have tremendously increased since the end of World War II. As an example, monthly base wages for a C-2 cargo ship operator are up 77 per cent since 1947, overtime wages are up 187 per cent, and food supply, maintenance and repair costs have jumped 124 per cent. Other factors resulting in higher operating payments are all increased number of voyages by American ships engaged in world trade, a governmental approved increase in the number of trade route operators, and an increase in the number and size of our passenger fleet.

As for the need for U. S. merchant ships, endless facts could be cited. To take but one, of 38 critical industrial metals and materials, we are self-sufficient in only nine—we must import all or part of the others, including two-fifths of our copper and nearly a third of our lead and zinc. And we export vast quantities of foods and manufactured goods across the oceans—exports which account for an important share of our employment and national income. In the light of world conditions, it would be an invitation to disaster to depend on foreign-flag merchant marines to do the job for us. Through no fault of theirs or ours, we could lose their services almost overnight.

Last January President Eisenhower said that the United States requires "a foreign economic program that will stimulate economic growth in the free world through enlarging opportunities for the fuller operation of the forces of free enterprise and competitive markets." The American merchant marine is an indispensable element in that.

BEWARE THE TRAP

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

You know, you see genta all dressed up—delegates of their town or state—down at the depot, headed for Hand-out-Town on the banks of the wandering Potomac. All are on the same mission. Looking for swigs. There is do-re-mi in them their parts for the picking up of swigs. If you can hook up with the right congressman or senator—the ones who like it thereabouts, and choose to finish in first place at the coming election. It is not his money—the great man figures—and if the dishing out of same will get him a vote, he acts quick.

Gez whiz, says Henry. Where does all this loose money come from that is floatin' around looking for votes. It's quite simple, I says, so harken. The beaming, well-dressed delegates from far and wide, who pick up the hand-out there, and arrive back home, with a band and the populace on the depot platform awaiting their return, seem as confused as you. Well, thank you, says Henry, very much. The do-re-mi brought home for the new court house or croquet ground or scenic drive is the very same cash money you left at the income tax man's pay-up window on April 15. My word! says Henry. And from the time the Tax Man gets it from you, till your well-fed delegates arrive home with the hand-out, there has been a heap of erosion—you get back a lot less than you put in.

Over at the school house there should be more accent on how not to be a sucker—when you grow up. Yours with the low down, JO SEBRIA

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

At THE spring of her junior year in college Marjorie Morgan, 229 Kenwood Avenue, Baton Rouge, Louisiana, got a message saying that her father was dead.

Without details, she knew at once that he had killed himself. She had always felt that he might. Although a brilliant man, he had never been able to come to a belief in God, and his health had recently been cracking under the strain of the accumulated years of the depression and the worries that he stored up within himself. He had never been able to accept the slightest help from any living soul, even from those members of his family who loved him most.

All during the endless train ride home through the night, and during the dreary days that followed, Marjorie's mind kept going around in the same bitter circle: Why did it have to happen? What could her mother or her brother have done to change the course of events? Wasn't there something they could have said to implant faith in him? Why does God let such things happen?

At such times no amount of keeping busy or of rational analysis, or of applying any other rule to prevent anxiety and worry, will completely allay the bitterness, although they will help. Such a time—and it comes to everyone sooner or later—calls for a complete acceptance of reality, for "cooperation with the inevitable." Facing the fact that no amount of wishful thinking could change what had happened, she reached out to a Source of Strength much greater than her own—to our never-changing, ever-loving God, and in so doing she combated her fear and worry and bolstered her courage, and she says she believes there is now no catastrophe that she could not meet and face and eventually build on it a happier and more useful life.

ACROSS the DESK

From the Lincoln Times, Lincoln, North Carolina: According to an AP dispatch, Pravda, the newspaper which speaks for the Kremlin, recently gave the Soviet machine building industry a sharp "kidding" and said it could learn a lot from Detroit and Pittsburgh. A short time before that Party Secretary Krushchev told Soviet farmers that they could learn much about corn and hog culture from Iowa.

It is official Communist doctrine that capitalist America is a decadent nation in which farmers and workers are ruthlessly exploited. But, when it comes to actual problems, it seems that the communists have to look to us decadent capitalists for solutions.

From the South Pasadena Review, South Pasadena, California: Shed a tear for the plight of the Communist Party organizer who, so the story goes, wrote this complaint to his superior:

"It is becoming increasingly difficult to reach the down-trodden masses in America. In the spring, they're forever polishing their cars. In the summer, they take vacations. In the fall, they go to the World Series and football games. And in the winter you can't get them away from their TV sets."

"Please give me suggestions on how to let these people know how oppressed they are."

From the Times Leader, West Point, Mississippi: "Any strong nation of free workers can survive the ordeal of going broke, and can even come back stronger than ever when the tide of fortune again turns its way. But past this you have no country is strong enough to make a comeback when the people lose their sense of personal responsibility . . . and their fundamental respect for the system that underlies all economic progress—the private property system—under which all men have the same opportunity."

SCANNING THE NEWS

WHATEVER one may think about former President Harry S. Truman, his recent visit to Washington was as refreshing as a mountain breeze in the stuffy, whispering-in-ears and censor-laden atmosphere of the Capitol City.

Mr. Truman's visit brought back some of the human warmth now missing here. His effervescence and frank down-to-earth comments were at wide variance to the secrecy and behind-door meetings of Congressional committees which are now largely becoming the rule, rather than the exception. His rather corny adjectives, his "bread grin," his rubbing shoulders with taxi-drivers, with people on the streets, his very innate friendliness, his early morning walks which draw crowds everywhere and friendly greetings from the men and women on the streets—all were in such broad contrast to the stilted, looking-over-the-shoulder, chilly and cheerless attitudes and blank faces which now pervade official Washington, as to invite widespread comment throughout, not only the newspaper fraternity, but almost everywhere in the city.

More, Mr. Truman brought back to Washington the two-party system. He made it plain there was a Democratic party and a Republican party and that next year there is a Presidential election; that so far as he was concerned there was no bipartisanship about this. There was no hash-hush about his attacks upon the Administration, nor upon President Eisenhower where he thought the President was wrong. And in so doing he issued a plain rebuke to the leaders of the Democratic party in Congress who at best have been politically afraid of criticizing President Eisenhower because of his widespread popularity.

As a matter of fact it begins to appear that many of the top Democrats in both Senate and House, most of whom come from the South, and who can be reflected in 1956 almost without firing a shot at the Eisenhower administration, have decided to use just those tactics. Which will make it tough for the relatively few northern Democrats up for reelection in 1956, and who must base a campaign upon opposition to Eisenhower and the Eisenhower administration.

Debate and committee hearings over the restoration of the 90% of parity to farm prices set a precedent. It was such a remarkable precedent that Representative Harold D. Cooney, chairman of the House Agricultural Committee and a committee member for twenty years, printed a committee document and distributed thousands of copies to farm groups. The pamphlet contained the testimony of Walter P. Reuther, President of the CIO; George Meany, President of the AFL, and the President of four or five unions in the CIO ranks, all in favor of the restoration of 90% of parity for the farm basic crops.

The writer of this column, has for 15 years been saying that if the Labor and Farm groups would once get together on a single objective they could get whatever they wanted in Congress.

PET PEEVE

ACCORDING to the Consumer Price Index (more popularly known as the Cost of Living Index) compiled by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, we are doing a wonderful job of keeping the dollar bill at a stabilized value. Right now, in most circles, the dollar is said to be worth about fifty cents, give or take a couple of pennies.

For three years now, the records indicate, we have miraculously managed to keep the bill within a few cents of the current value. Heavy for us. As long as we have 50 cents worth of buying power—almost—because records also indicate that 100 pennies will buy only about a third of what they would at the turn of the century. So, where do that place buy?

Before we get really confused and sorry for ourselves, though, we should give thanks that we are making more money than folks made when the fifty have was more valuable than it is now. That's our only salvation. And I guess it sort of eases things up a bit.

If we think we have things tough, try to get sympathy from some of our elders who worked down to earth on the farm, read by a coal oil lantern, dipped water from a stream or well, made their own clothes and grew practically everything that went on the table.

We may be paying through the nose for this modern civilization, but no one will tell you it isn't worth it.

...AND I QUOTE

"Fascist liberals, with their cloak of respectability, may do more to further the communist cause in America than the Communists themselves. People who are otherwise respectable and seemingly intelligent persons, perhaps unknowingly aid the Communists in many ways."—J. Edgar Hoover.

"Taking all income above $4,000 a year would yield 15 billion dollars; still but a fifth of our current annual federal spending. The many in the lower-income areas have to help make up the giant total."—Gardner (Mass.) News.

Bellingham, Wash. Herald: "The Communist party has been outlawed by Congress, and other federal and state legislation has further restricted the organization, but Americans who become complacent concerning the Communist conspiracy failed to measure its purpose. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says in a statement to the House Appropriations Committee that while the party has thus been driven underground the 22,000 party members represent a Trojan horse of rigidly disciplined fanatics." Mr. Hoover explained that while one agent was needed in World War II to trail a Nazi, as many as 10 are required now to shadow Communist subversives."

Read John 15:12-17.

These things I have spoken to you, that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full.... You are my friends if you do what I command you. (John 15:12-14, RSV.)

ONE day a friend asked me, "Do you ever feel that Christ is near you?" My answer was, "I certainly do. He is the unseen member at our family table. We have welcomed Him into our family circle."

To us He is friend, adviser, and comforter. He seems to us not a man of sorrows, burdened with the cares of the world, but a joyous, risen Christ.

Jesus lived a full life in but a few years. He loved the sunrise; the strength of the hills; the sea, whether calm or tempestuous. He walked the roads of His country

In a never-ending effort to bring comfort, peace, and health to those who loved Him.

You recall the little boy's definition of a friend. He said, "It's someone who knows all about you and still likes you." Christ is such a friend; He knows all about us and loves us just the same. "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

Prayer

O God, teach us to remember Thee for Thy ever-present love. Instill Thy love in us through Christ that His joy may be in us and our joy may be full. Teach us obedience that we may be called Thy friends. In His name. Amen.

Thought For The Day

We have a constant friend and comforter in God the Father, in Christ the Son, and in the Holy Spirit.

Maine dairymen know they shouldn't let the fertility value of their dairy manure go down the drain. The liquid portion can be saved by using plenty of bedding, starting manure under cover or spreading it daily, or by keeping manure piles flat on top if it must be stored outdoors.

GOULD ACADEMY

Class of 1957—Ronald Willard, Bethel; Jack Reid, Lisbon Falls; Myrna Blake, Bethel; Lorraine Leighton, Bethel. National Training Laboratory

The National Training Laboratory in Group Development returns to Gould Academy for its ninth consecutive summer this year. The Laboratory is expanding to two sessions with the first opening on June 15 and the second on July 17. Faculty members are scheduled to arrive on June 15. In addition to representative groups from practically every state of the Union, the Laboratory will have in attendance this summer a large delegation of Europeans including five from Austria, five from the Netherlands, four from Denmark, five from France, four from Norway, three from England and three from Belgium all sponsored by organizations from their respective countries. It is expected that there may be other representatives to the Laboratory from foreign countries listed above, who will come independently. The Laboratory promises to be one of the best of the series. National Honor Society Initiation

The National Honor Society is holding the initiation of its new members at the summer camp of Headmaster and Mrs. Elwood F. Ireland at Kears Lake, Lovell, this evening. New members to be initiated are Wendell Bragg, Barbara Holbert, Philip Rowe, Iva Rugg, Dianne Watson, Val Kelch, Eleanor Merriam, Sandra Myers, and David Willard. The other members of the society who were elected last year are Patricia Allen, William Daley, Jane Smith, and Carter Taylor.

On Friday, Gould will travel to South Paris for a return game with the Cardinals. The Huskies won an easy 21-3 victory at Bethel but are looking for a much tougher game on the Paris home grounds. The game is scheduled for 3:30.

On Tuesday, the 24th, the Huskies will play host to Dixfield in another Western Maine Conference game. The Bethel nine lost by a one run margin in an 8-9 encounter which opened the season for Gould. The visitors are one of the better teams in the league which makes this one an all important game for Gould.

Friday at 3:15 the Hebron J.V.s will be here to avenge a previous defeat at the hands of the Gould underdogs. The visitors will come with their regular J.V.s instead of the Hilltopper team which proved too weak opposition in the first game held at Hebron.

On Monday at 4 p. m. the Gould

J.V.s will meet the Rumford J.V.s at Bethel. This will be the first meeting of the two clubs.

Thursday at 3:30, the J.V.s will play their third in a row at home. This time it will be Andover High, a team that they have already beaten by a 7 to 6 margin.

Winslow to Meet Gould Saturday

Cosco's Roderick's track and field men will be meeting the strong Winslow High team here on Saturday starting at 1:30. This will be the final home meet of the year. The team will go to Rumford on the 28th to take part in the Oxford County meet and on June 4th, they travel to Waterville to defend their State Championship Crown.

The Gould-Norway game at Norway was rained out at the end of four innings last Saturday with Gould leading 20-0.

The concert of all the musical organizations of the Academy held in William Bingham Gym last Friday night was tape recorded and broadcast over Station WZLW last Saturday morning.

Dick Trimbach was the high point man last Saturday with firsts in the 100 yard dash, the 220, and the broad jump for a total of 15 points for Gould. Edward Little, however, took first and second places in five of the thirteen events which gave him enough to outscore the home time 66 to 48. Cony High was third with 29 points. Gagne was a double winner for Cony in the discus and the shot. Total first place winners were six for Edward Little, four for Gould, and three for Cony.

MR. PERFECT'S MISTAKE

By Hal Borden

If he stood just right of the elevator, Henry Elwood could see himself in the full length mirror. It was his habit each morning to make a last minute personal survey before going up to his seventh floor office.

This morning he judged he looked precisely like an eligible bachelor—elegant. He was impeccably in grey flannel suit, midnight blue topcoat and homburg to match. In the elevator he doffed the latter with just the right flourish when his secretary, Miss Siggs, got on.

From the double rows of desks that flanked the also leading to his office, he picked up the monotonous good mornings and curt, but polite nods.

His first duty was to get Miss Siggs on the intercom. "I'll be ready for dictation at exactly nine-twelve," he told her. The same smile was across her pretty face when she entered his office at the appointed time. Her blond hair bounced when she nodded her readiness. This morning it's mirrorlike sheen sent a glow of admiration through Henry Elwood.

He'd often toyed with the proper approach to ask her to lunch with him, and because he hadn't it bothered him. It suggested failure and he hated failure as much as he loathed imperfection.

Halfway through his first letter he began his customary pacing. When he had made several circlings of the rug and returned to look down at Miss Siggs, she was smiling broadly.

He tried his best to ignore it. He tried a wider circle of pacing. By the end of the letter he looked at her again and saw her actually suppressing a laugh.

"You find something very amusing, Miss Siggs?" he asked. "Something suddenly made me real happy," she said in a low, even voice.

He frowned down at her more puzzled than angry. "Then by all means let's share it, Miss Siggs," he said. "You know how not being aware of something always bothers me."

He watched as the beautiful blonde head nodded again. Then those eyes looked directly into his own.

"Your unawareness makes it all the more amusing, Mr. Elwood," she told him. She took a step closer to him and he noticed that at very close range she was even prettier. She smiled up at him and said simply, "Your socks."

"I beg your pardon?"

When she repeated it he reached down and slowly raised his trouser legs a few cautious, discreet inches. His eyes widened. His left sock was a somber, acceptable business-like brown. The right one bright green.

They both clashed with his red face. When he straightened up he too had to laugh and when he laughed in near-perfect pitch with the laughter of Miss Siggs.

He put his hands gently on her shoulders and looked down at her. His voice was almost pleading. "This incident won't go any further will it Miss Siggs?" he asked.

"That, Mr. Elwood, might be very unwise," she said. Her hand waved toward the outer office. "They really should know."

"But why?" he asked incredulously. "It's really no concern of theirs."

"But it is. They'd know that Mr. Henry Elwood is really a boniface member of the human race. That he's quite capable of making mistakes like the rest of us. That—that you have feelings like other folks."

When she turned from him to pick up her pad he noticed her hand was trembling.

"Do you suppose it might keep until after I take you to lunch, Miss Siggs—Martha?" he asked. She looked up at him again and the smile was back. He was glad. "It might at that, Mr. Elwood."

WORTH REPEATING

"We know without question that it is almost an impossibility under our economic system to have a guaranteed annual wage in certain types of business. There are millions of workers with corporations that couldn't possibly make such a guarantee." — George Meany, President A. F. of L.

"A government agency has a duty to the taxpayers to buy what it needs at fair and reasonable prices, just as an industry owes that same responsibility to its stockholders. Every safeguard should be established to see that government does not pay excessive prices." — Lynn (Miss) Telegram-News.

"In the next decade our total expenditures for public education will have to be at least doubled and perhaps tripled. But even as the problem is the solution is within our reach if we have the will and the wisdom to finance it. Our present expenditures for public education amount to less than a percent of the Gross National Product. With the predicted growth in our national output, a slight increase in the percentage spent on education would take care of all our needs." — Stratford (Conn.) News.

"International Public Affairs, Daily Journal: 'It takes about $12,000 invested in buildings, equipment and tools to make just one job in the average U. S. manufacturing industry. In some cases the investment is much greater. That money comes, basically, from the savings of people who have invested in the hope of profits from which dividends are paid.'"

Conservation Farming In Oxford County

by Douglas L. Marston
Soil Conservation Service

A school for land judging was held on April 23 at Auburn, Florida. Struettmeyer, Head of the Agronomy Department of the University of Maine and Stewart Hardesty of the Soil Conservation Service at Orono conducted the school. County Agents, Vocational Agricultural Teachers, and Soil Conservation Service personnel from several of the southern Counties attended.

The purpose of the school was to acquaint those working in agriculture to conduct land judging contests in their own respective counties.

Dr. Struettmeyer of the University said that he felt that such schools or contests would help farm people become more soils conscious.

No definite plans have been made for contests here in Oxford County as yet, but it is hoped that the Vocational Agricultural Schools at Norway, Buckfield and Fryeburg might have contests in the near future. 4-H groups could also organize teams to compete among the other clubs in the county. Adult contests or schools have also been held in some areas with great success.

The tree planter owned by the Oxford County Soil Conservation District is right on schedule and we hope to be at the Canton Town Forest on May 19, at Ralph Burdum's in West Peru on May 14, and at Bethel for Arthur Head, May 16, and at Fred Lovejoy's on May 18 and 17. You folks who would like to see the planter operate might contact the above named persons and find out for sure when they will be planting. The above schedule may have to be changed due to weather or other reasons.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

Boothbay Harbor, Me., Register: "Many administrative positions in government do require men who have been especially trained. But it is not true that every aspect of government should be run by experts, by the select few. Those who would have it so lack faith in the people. They would turn their backs on democratic ways and would open wide the doors to totalitarianism and dictatorship." Hillsboro, Ore., Argus: "There is a great deal of logic in President Eisenhower's belief that terms of office of members of the U. S. House of Representatives should be for four years instead of the present two. On a four-year term basis the congressmen would be in a position to do a better job because under present conditions they must devote too much time to campaigning and give too much thought to what effect their votes on issues will have on their re-election."

Patrol 4—We have finished our cookle sales and the following girls have received the Award of Merit: Claire Berry, Linda Brown, Nikki MacMillan, Lorenda Freeman, Jean Waterhouse, Carolyn Chapman, Dixie Brown and Barbara Angewine. The whole Patrol worked very hard on this sale, and we are all looking forward to spending our "profits" on our annual camping trip in June. Barbara Angewine passed her First Class Scout requirements this week. We are very pleased for her. While we were all discussing Play Day at Norway next Saturday, Jean Waterhouse and Barbara Monfette went to the kitchen and made fudge for us. It was very good. It seems this patrol has twelve very good cooks in it. seems too bad they can't teach the leaders to cook!—Yes, folks, we still want scrap paper and magazine, just let us know you have some and we will pick it up.

Pine Tree Patrol Unit A met at the home of Mary Keoske. We had cake and cookies for refreshments and made plans for Play Day. We made trefoll name tags to be used Saturday at the Play Day. We identified flowers. See, Sheila Roberts.

Brownie Troop 7 met at the home of our leader A birthday party for Jacky Crouse which was planned by Mrs. Crouse was held at this time. A beautiful Brownie birthday cake was served with punch and ice cream. Gifts were opened. Following the party we made trefoll name cards to be worn Saturday at the Play Day to be held in South Paris. Several new songs were learned. We are to meet Saturday morning at 8:45 at Mrs. Keniston's to leave for South Paris.

"One thing we don't want in this country is the type of cartel capitalism that has weakened the economies, corrupted governments, and held down living standards in Europe and elsewhere."—Bradford (Vt.) The United Opinion.

Shareholders in American industry are the people who make possible new jobs, new opportunities, new and better living standards for us all. And these people have long been treated, taxwise, with great inequity. The profits earned by business are heavily taxed before any dividends can be paid to individuals. No other kind of income is subjected to double taxation of this nature."—Lynn (Mass.) Telegram-News.

Brownsville, Pa., Telegraph: "Life is rapidly becoming more and more predictable. Economists are forever charting curves on the unemployment level for next August; insurance companies foretell life expectancy with astonishing accuracy; widget manufacturers predict, with a small margin of error, how many widgets the public will buy in 1953. All this makes life more secure but less interesting, since the unexpected adds zest to the stew."

of Maine, acts in an advisory capacity to the Green Pastures Committee.
